We stick to our promises – evidence and facts:

01

“ We have been purchasing bath towels and robes from Floringo for several years, e.g. for hotels in the South Tyrolean region and as far as Lake Garda. As bidet, hand and bath towels we use series "Como", made from Optimum-Soft yarn, which is a full success and now in stock at Floringo for immediate availability. This service is an additional, important competitive advantage for us.”

Ms. Bea Eccel, Lavarent Company

“ Edition Hotels place great emphasis on stylistic harmony and modern character in their furnishing components. For this reason, the choice for bathrobes to the Edition Hotel Toranomom in Tokyo fell on model 511 by Floringo. The subsequent, easy going and trustworthy performance are further reasons, why we again chose Floringo bathrobes for the new Edition Hotel in Reykjavik.”

Chris Weitkemper, Senior Management Procurement, EDITION Hotels

“ Company Federer in Austria supplies wellness resorts, sports and top hotels such as the "Bio-Hotel Stanglwirt" near Kitzbühel. The hallmark of this hotel is its rural tradition and high ecological standards. The owner reports that the guests are impressed by our towels and bathrobes that are used in the hotel. We highly appreciate this cooperation which has been established over 15 years ago.”

Stanglwirt, Kitzbühel

“ We have chosen Floringo as our supplier because the company is well recognized in the market for its high-quality terry linen and highly respected among laundries for its reliable partnership. The latter is of great importance to us. By our own experience, we too have listed Floringo as a preferred supplier and are pleased by the indepth advice. In this context, we have developed customized waffle terry bathrobes for the Hyatt Regency Zurich Airport which is already successfully in use.”

Hyatt Regency Zurich Airport The Circle

04

“ Our partner Floringo is a strong pioneer with its sustainable bathrobes, terry towels and Bath Mats. Floringo is also an excellent supplier for our GreenSign hotels. Floringo is committed to sustainability in a holistic and tangible approach. Floringo not only meets these criteria with Green Button certification but completes sustainability by the optimal use of cotton yarns due to an extremely long lifecycle. We are happy to recommend Floringo's products and appreciate an always competent and friendly cooperation.”

Mrs. Darlene Schwabroch, GreenSign

“ With Floringo, we developed a logistical concept more than 15 years ago to supply AIDA cruise ships with large quantities of terry products at short notice. With this service profile, we were able to assert ourselves in a particularly tight, globally competitive environment. Equally decisive was and still is the high economic efficiency of the terry linen for AIDA, which is expressively appreciated by the passengers. Example: the recently launched model 570 kimono bathrobe.”

Hendrik Saggau; Managing Director Saggau and Helmich

“ I have been ordering your Best Print towels for many years. These mostly go to sports clubs, who wash them almost daily. I have often been told that they have never had towels that dry so well and last so long.”

Lex de Nooy, Managing Director De foto-dokter, textile printing company, Holland

“ Walter Greif GmbH & Co. KG is a large-scale laundry with highly automated and particularly energy-efficient washing and drying processes. Great value is placed on reducing ecological impact factors: "For our textile leasing business, we rely on durable fabrics that can be used industrially. It is therefore of central importance for us to have short-term availability, a balanced price-performance ratio and convincing sustainability. These are the central reasons why Floringo GmbH is one of our long-term suppliers.”

Helmut Börner, Managing Director Greif

Reactive dyes for cotton qualities

– colorfast & expressive, not chlorine resistant

Standard colors in reactive dyeing

Special property: Bright color, high fastness in washing.
Washing properties: Excellent, up to 95° C, but not chlorine resistant
Recommended washing temperature: first wash 95°C. Wash at 60°C or above as then color fixation in the fiber is intensified.
Color expression: Very strong and brilliant.
Dyeing process: During the dyeing process, the cotton fiber becomes part of a chemical reaction that cannot be reversed.

This results in high fastness in washing. In contrast to indanthrene dyeing, reactive colors are not chlorine resistant.
Tolerance: Deviation from the reference color tone can be +/- 5 %.

Please note: Print colors above may differ from the true yarn color. For exact color identification we will send color cards or color samples.
Customized colors can be produced in all shades. We will be happy to assist you. Please send us color reference e.g. in Pantone, RAL, HKS or in CMYK or a sample for your individualized project.

Explanation of symbols:
 △ = Chlorine treatment possible. Please follow the instructions of the chemical manufacturer as the fabric may be damaged otherwise.
 □ = Stock colors; are included in the catalog (all other colors: Florigo-standard color, but not in the catalog and not available on stock).

Vat dyes for cotton qualities

– chlorine resistant in washing

standard colors in indanthrene dyeing

Special property: Ideal for industrial laundering, whereby the chlorine resistance is of particular importance. Vat dyes excel in all aspects such as chlorine, light, soda boiling, perspiration resistance as well as washing and weather fastness.

Washing properties: Superb, up to 95° C. For chlorine treatment please follow the instructions of the chemical manufacturer, as the fabric may be damaged otherwise.

Recommended washing temperature: at least 60°C, for the first wash 95°C..

Color expression: Vat dyes consist of water-insoluble dyes and are dissolved in a chemical processes before dyeing. After dyeing, the dyes are again water-insoluble which is the fundamental reason for their excellent suitability for laundries. Vat dyes are known under the trademark 'Indanthren'. Overall, this process requires a high level of expertise and experience and is more complicated than reactive dyeing.

Tolerance: Due to the complex dyeing process, the deviation from the reference color shade can be +/- 7 %.

Please note: Print colors above may differ from the true yarn color. For exact color identification we will send color cards or color samples.

Customized colors: can be produced in all shades. We will be happy to assist you. Please send us color reference e.g. in Pantone, RAL, HKS or in CMYK or a sample for your individualized project.

Explanation of symbols:

Dispersion colors for polyester qualities

– bright & alkali resistant

Standard colors for Well-Soft-blankets

Standard colors for microfiber towels

Special property: Particularly insensitive to color, in some degrees also resistant to alkali and acids.

Washing properties: Very good, up to 95° C. Easy care and suitable for industrial laundering. Chlorine treatment possible to a limited extent.

Recommended washing temperature: At least 60°C, first wash 95°C.

Please note: Print colors above may differ from the true yarn color. For exact color identification we will send color cards or color samples.

Customized colors: can be produced in all shades. We will be happy to assist you. Please send us color reference e.g. in Pantone, RAL, HKS or in CMYK or a sample for your individualized project.

Color expression: Brilliant and bright.

Dyeing process: Water-insoluble dyes which are not dissolved but finely dispersed in the dyeing pot. After adding a chemical dispersant, the fiber is dyed in a stable solution.

Tolerance: The production-related deviation can be +/- 5 %.

Explanation of symbols:

△ = Chlorine treatment possible. Please follow the instructions of the chemical manufacturer as the fabric may be damaged otherwise.

□ = Stock colors; are included in the catalog (all other colors: Florigostandard color, but not in the catalog and not available on stock).

Twin-Star quality dyeing

– shiny outside & matt inside

Standard colors for Twin-Star qualities

Special property: Persistent softness, tearfast and quickly drying. Available also in pre-dyed fabrics in bulk in a wide range of colors, see table. Ideally suited for creating various items like bathrobes, ponchos, kilts, massae and lounge covers.

Washing properties: Best up to 95° C. Chlorine resistance depends on dyeing of inside cotton. (See dyeing process below).

Recommended washing temperature: minimum 60°C, first wash 95°C.

Color expression: velvet shimmering outside (dispersion); white, marbled or matt inside, see specific item.

Dyeing process: Twin-Star qualities always come with a dispersion dyeing of the microvelours (polyester) outside. The inner cotton is chlorine resistant when white bleached or dyed in dispersion. It is also possible to dye cotton yarns separately with reactive dyes which consequently result in non-chlorine-resistance.

Tolerance: The production-related deviation can be +/- 7 %.

Please note: Print colors above may differ from the true yarn color. For exact color identification we will send color cards or color samples.

Customized colors: can be produced in all shades. We will be happy to assist you. Please send us color reference e.g. in Pantone, RAL, HKS or in CMYK or a sample for your individualized project.

Explanation of symbols:

△ = Chlorine treatment possible. Please follow the instructions of the chemical manufacturer as the fabric may be damaged otherwise.

□ = Stock colors; are included in the catalog (all other colors: Florigostandard color, but not in the catalog and not available on stock).

Yarns & Fabrics

Yarns

Worsted yarn or combed cotton is produced by an additional work step between carding and spinning of yarns. The short fibers are removed from the card sliver by toothed rollers, and the fibers in the yarn are aligned completely. Fluctuations in the thickness of the spinning yarn are also compensated.

Carded ring spun yarns are ring spun yarns that are twisted into each other at high speed and are therefore soft and fine, with high tear and abrasion resistance at the same time. Before spinning, the fibers are carded, i.e. exposed individually, placed parallel to each other and arranged into a pile (card sliver). Floringo uses these properties and recommends the use of carded ring spun yarns in the entire fabric, i.e. in the pile, bottom layer of fabric and weft. This terry fabric is skin-friendly and resilient at the same time, so that the service life of this Floringo terry is at least 30% longer than that of terry textiles with open-end (OE) yarns.

Microfiber – especially fine polyester fiber, which is used for cosmetic towels and bathrobes of Twin-Star fabric, for example. Compared to pure cotton fabrics, softness and fluffiness are already achieved with a very low area density. See Polyester for more details.

OE (open-end) yarns or rotor yarns are yarns produced by means of a rotor spinning frame. It is generally suitable for stiffer fibers with a low tendency to crimping. The yarn feels harder than ring spun yarn. Above all, it is much less strong. Suitable as weft material, but not for premium combed fibers – see Ring spun yarns.

Polyester – an often underestimated fiber that deserves clarification. Polyester fibers are of premium quality and optimize the properties of terry fabrics in many ways: Polyester yarns in the bottom fabric layer of bath mats and towels helps them stay in place better and dry faster. In bathrobes, e.g. made of waffle piqué or Twin-Star fabric, they contribute decisively to lasting softness and always reduce shrinkage. This is attributable to the following properties: Polyester fibers can be three times finer than silk and have a tear length of about 40–55 km. With an elongation of 15–25%, they are both elastic and wrinkle resistant. In addition, they are highly resistant to chemicals and light, as well as climatic factors.

Premuim-Soft yarn – wonderfully soft yarn made of combed and long staple cotton. The yarn is characterized by its extra high volume and exceptional absorbency. As these properties are already effective at lower basis weights, Premium-Soft yarns are perfect for bathrobe fabrics, both in the institutional industry and for high-end incentives.

Fabric

Well-Soft cuddly, plush polyester fabric, also known as “wellsoft”. The plush fluffiness of our Well-Soft fibers is produced in a series of finishing processes. Although their water absorption is low, the fabric is still breathable in terms of sweat. Knit Well-Soft fabric is snag-free and perfect for easy-care, warm blankets for indoor and outdoor use.

Twin-Star is a fabric specially developed by Floringo, with lasting softness and snag resistance. Twin-Star fabric is marked by pure microfiber on the outside and pure cotton on the inside. Thanks to the microfiber content, the fabric remains soft, even after intensive washing, and dries faster than cotton. The combination of a very comfortable fit and time and energy efficient washing make Twin-Star ideal for the manufacture of bathrobes for institutional use.

Velour is made of single-ply yarn and/or twist, where the loops are shorn on the front side by an elaborate process, thus lending the material an extra-velvety look and pleasant feel. Woven as single-ply terry or twisted terry on the inside of the towel to achieve good absorbency.

Single-ply terry is a woven terry in which the loop consists of a single-ply yarn. The fluffy, soft feel is achieved by the boiling process, a special wet/boiling process. Single-ply terry is characterized by its plush feel and high absorbency.

Terry is not woven, but instead produced on knitting machines. The loop is made of pure cotton and is characterized by the fact that the threads cannot be pulled (snag-free). A polyester content of approx. 6–12% in the bottom layer of fabric is required for the knitting process. Further information is available in English at: <https://www.karlmayer.com/en/products/warp-knitting-machines/raschel-machines/>

Twisted terry refers to the method used to process the loops. Optik. The terry fabric consists of twisted yarns in the pile, thus lending the product a somewhat firmer feel and a unique, slightly robust character, also in terms of appearance.

Colors

Vat-dyed colors represent the ultimate in color properties for the institutional industry in many respects. On the market, these dyes are known under the trademark, Indanthren®. Vat dyes have optimum properties in terms of color fastness, light fastness, washfastness and perspiration fastness, thus guaranteeing maximum durability and quality. Vat dyes are perfect for use in commercial laundry. Their resistance to chlorine is particularly noteworthy in this respect – see Instructions for Care. The difficult dyeing process requires a high level of competence. Due to the nature of the process, the tolerance for color deviations is higher for vat-dyed colors than for reactive colors.

Finishing, Seams & Cuts

Reactive colors create a particularly strong and bright color impression. The chemical reaction with the cotton fiber can no longer be reversed and ensures very good wash resistance. The perfect dye for promotional use or for use in private households. Only conditionally suitable for industrial laundry, as reactive colors are not chlorine resistant.

Finishing

AIRCO@ is a patented hot air process in which lint is gently blown out. A special “puffing up” process ensures that an especially plush and luxurious pile is created, even before the first wash.

Hydrophilic defines the property of being able to absorb a relatively large amount of moisture. The hydrophilic finishing process is used for premium fiber materials and leads to high absorbency and excellent hygienic properties, even with intensive colors.

Turbang® Finishing – similar to AIRCO finishing.

Seams and edges

Double chain seam – refers to the seam on the long sides of towels. The edge of the towel is folded in and sewn double with a dense chain stitch. This is important for durability, as terry towels are particularly heavy when wet and their edges hit the washing drum.

Chain stitch – the needle is brought through the back of the fabric, then brought through the front of the fabric near the first hole, so that a loop is formed, creating a chain of loops when repeated. With our automatic sewing machines, we produce seams that are elastic and sturdy at the same time, e.g. on the long sides of towels. In the process, the seams are doubled and the chain stitch is made with high density (at least 3.5 stitches per cm).

Overlock – is a seam where the stitching encloses and secures the raw edge. Here, it is important not to pull the thread too tightly. Overlock seams are useful for flat fabrics, only conditionally well suited for terry loop fabrics. We therefore avoid smooth cut edges as far as possible in order to keep chain-link stitching of cut edges down to the necessary minimum.

Piping and bias tape – a strip of folded fabric used to finish or decorate fabric edges. For example, blankets and children’s hooded towels are finished with bias tape all around, but the edges are chain-stitched first. Piping is popular for bathrobes as a stylistic element on the collar and is useful for sorting in the laundry.

Pressed seam – a particularly important seam e.g. on the long sides of bathrobes. The pressed seam is very sturdy and provides a skin-friendly feel, making it the standard in our bathrobes for institutional use, such as the Twin-Star Standard. Here, the cut edge is chain-stitched first, then folded over and finally sewn firmly to the fabric so that the seam will not ravel or be bulky.

Lockstitch – The lockstitch is identical to the backstitch seam, which also explains its function better: It is similar to the running stitch/saddle stitch, but there is still an intermediate step, whereby the stitch goes back again and closes the small gaps. This results in a very robust seam, which we use for most of the transverse seams of our towels. It is also used in embroidery, where it is used for fine contours and outlines.

Cuts

Full-body cut means that the body of the bathrobe consists of a single piece of terry cloth and therefore has no long side seams.

Hood – in hooded bathrobes, the hood also forms the collar at the same time.

Kimono – for bathrobes, this means that the collar is not folded. The advantage of this cut in the institutional industry is that the bathrobes are easy to fold.

Raglan style means that the sleeves and shoulders are cut in one piece. The sleeve attaches directly to the collar and more or less extends diagonally over the shoulder area. Bathrobes cut this way are therefore very easy to put on and fit very comfortably over the chest and shoulders. The name goes back to the English Lord Raglan, who lost an arm in a battle and allegedly invented this cut to make it easier to get into his coat.

Shawl collar – The upper collar and lapel are connected seamlessly. Similar to a shawl, the folded fabric runs around the neckline and merges at the level of the chest. The shawl collar can be finished with piping or Well-Soft trim, for example.
